Berkeley-East Bay Humane Society Welcomes New Veterinarian

Berkeley, Dec 14, 2006— The Berkeley-East Bay Humane Society announces the arrival of their new full-time veterinarian, Dr. Emilia Gordon, DVM.

Gordon grew up in the South Bay and received her undergraduate degree at Stanford. After graduating from UC Davis Veterinary School, Gordon spent 1 ½ years in private practice in Marin County. She has also been actively involved in San Francisco providing veterinary care for homeless animals and has volunteered regularly for animal welfare organizations.

Gordon brings incredible knowledge, enthusiasm, and dedication to the practice. As the proud owner of a 2-year-old chocolate lab named Jake, Gordon says she was drawn to Berkeley-East Bay Humane Society after learning about the comprehensive services BEBHS provides to the community.

Gordon says, “I am impressed by what BEBHS is doing to care for all animals in the community—whether they are shelter animals or beloved pets of clients. BEBHS is an important resource for all animal lovers whether they need veterinary care for their animals, humane education, pet training, or are looking to adopt a new dog or cat. I am really excited to be a part this organization.”

BEBHS Executive Director, Mim Carlson, is equally excited saying “Dr. Gordon is exactly what this organization and the community needs for our animals. Her values and high standards match the Berkeley-East Bay Humane Society’s vision of providing people and pets with compassionate top-quality services.”

The Humane Society’s Veterinary Hospital offers reasonably priced veterinary care for animals and operates a low-cost Spay/Neuter clinic once a week.
